

Way back in the 14th century, the Mongols invaded Hindukush* - the land of milk, honey and other rich treasures. In return, they left behind a trail of destruction. And well, the Kabab. The Kabab was then, just meat sprinkled with salt, barbecued and gobbled. Soon, it caught the fancy of the Indian chefs. And they perfected it to a sublime art. The kind which you can savor at The Great Kabab Factory at the Radisson.

Here you will find the royal and unique Shahi Gilaawat Kabab, better known as the Galouti Kabab; the street-side Machchi Amritsari and Bhatti ka Murg; the temporal Kakori Kabab; the aphrodisiacal Pathar ka Kabab; charcoal-grilled Maas ke Sooley; the tandoor-roasted fruits de mer. And many more such mouth-watering kababs... prepared in different styles.

Roasted on the tandoor or on a sighri, shallow-fried in a tawa or a mahi tawa, deep-fried in a kadhai, steamed in pots, even grilled on stone. Making them the most succulent and delicious kababs you'll ever sink your teeth into. All guaranteed to give you total gastronomic satisfaction.

Now that we have whet your appetite, we'd like you to try our delectable kababs and biryanis... a culinary marriage made in heaven. And yes! we're ready for an invasion.

The Great Kabab Factory

Here, the Kabab is king!

*India and its subcontinent -
as it was known at that time.